Born to missionary parents in Brussels, Belgium, George moved to the US at the beginning of WWII. After studying in the US, he returned to Belgium in June '52. Dora is Belgian and served with the Salvation Army in London and Kinshasa from '47-'54. They both taught at the Belgian Bible Institute for 33 years. For 20 of those, George was the school's director. Along with teaching, George led students in open-air evangelism and in church-planting efforts. George and Dora have been conference speakers in numerous countries. The Winstons resumed church-planting ministry in the 80s. George has also published several booklets on theology and Christian living (in French). The Winston's legacy reaches far in Belgium. Their 6 children and their families all continue to live and serve there.
