Ministry...

After meeting at Wheaton College and marrying in 1997, Neil and Joyce were accepted by Wycliffe Bible Translators as Ethnomusicology workers in 2000. In 2002, they moved to Papua New Guinea to begin their first field term. Neil and Joyce spent their first term working in the Alamlak language group in the Sepik Region.

The Coulters were stationed in Ukarampa until June 2015. Neil served as an Ethnomusicology Consultant as well as a Language Programs Director for some years, and Joyce was the high school English teacher for the SIL-run school for MKs. As the family returns to the US, Neil is joining the faculty of GIAL [Graduate Institute of Applied Linguistics] in Dallas and will be a professor in the World Arts program, where his experience and expertise will go toward preparing students to work cross-culturally and work with their target communities in various artistic fields. He will be able to help multiply himself many times over in this role.
